Preface

Dear Students,

A most hearty welcome to Std VIII. We are happy to place this textbook 'My English Book Eight' in your hands.

English has been a part of your studies since Std I. So far, you have learnt many English songs and poems. You can read and understand the English seen and heard in your surroundings. You can use English to communicate precisely in everyday situations, in spoken, written, or ecommunication modes. You have enjoyed some interesting stories and passages in the previous textbooks and working out activities based on what you have learnt. Now that you are in Std VIII, you will do all this and also learn to use English both spoken and written with a better understanding of the language and the way it should be used. You will also get to enjoy reading works of some well-known writers.

Our main aim is to help you use English with confidence. We want you to be able to ask questions, gain knowledge and new skills, be creative and to spend your free time joyfully. That is why, we would like you to take part in all the activities and exercises in the 'Warm up' and 'English Workshop' sections, without any fear. Talk to your teacher freely about the problems and difficulties you face while studying this textbook. Many of the activities are designed to show you ways of thinking, learning on your own, and to sharpen your skill in creative writing so that you can write on your own meaningful, systematically in different types of formats. The more you use the activities, the better you will learn.

Useful audio-video teaching-learning material given in each relevant lesson will be available through the Q. R. Code and through the medium of App for additional information. It will be definitely useful for your study.

We will be happy if you share your feelings about the contents of this book with us. We hope you enjoy studying it throughout the year.

Wish you all the best in your studies!

- * Questions given in the margin are meant for oral work accompanying the reading of the text to ensure understanding of the contents. Please do not use them for written evaluation.
- * The preparatory activities aim to develop fluency of students in thinking as well as speaking in English. These activities are related to the text as also to the world outside the classroom. They acquaint the students with ways of understanding informative pieces and appreciating the literary ones.
- * Grammar terms given in the book should NOT be used for evaluation, but for explaining the rules and conventions of usage to the students.
- * Use a bilingual approach while dealing with thought-provoking activities. Students may use their mother tongue in the course of discussions. But make sure that you recapitulate the gist of the activities in English at the end, and get the students to do the same.

Be The Best

Be The Best

If you can't be a pine on the top of the hill,
Be a scrub in the valley – but be
The best little scrub by the side of the rill;
Be a bush if you can't be a tree.

If you can't be a bush be a bit of the grass,
And some highway happier make;
If you can't be a muskie then just be a bass –
But the liveliest bass in the lake!

We can't all be captains, we've got to be crew,
There's something for all of us here,
There's big work to do, and there's lesser, to do,
And the task you must do is the near.

If you can't be a highway then just be a trail,
If you can't be the sun be a star;
It isn't by size that you win or you fail –
Be the best of whatever you are !

Androcles and the Lion

Long, long ago, there lived a kind, gentle and courteous man called Androcles. But he had a very cruel master. In those days, kings, nobles, and other wealthy men used poor people as their slaves. Androcles was a slave. The slaves were forced to work for their masters. They had to do what their masters told them. They had no freedom, no rights. Even when they were unhappy with their master, they could not leave him. They were bound by law to obey their master, however wicked he might be.

Androcles did not like his heartless, wicked master. His master starved his slaves and often whipped them. Androcles felt that even death was better than serving such a master. He kept looking out for a good opportunity. At the first chance he got, he escaped from the clutches of his cruel master.

Now, although Androcles had thus run away, he was not a coward. He took shelter in a forest. He was not afraid of the wild beasts that roamed the forest. He did not mind that he had no roof over his head. He was happy that he was free as a bird to go wherever he wished.

One day, as he was wandering in the forest, he suddenly came face to face with a lion. His first reaction was to turn and flee. But then he saw that the lion had not moved on seeing him. It neither growled, nor roared. In fact, it looked at him piteously as if it was in great pain.

Androcles paused. Then he moved very cautiously towards the lion, step by step. The lion moaned and whimpered. “Please help me,” its eyes seemed to say.

When Androcles drew near, the lion lowered its head and began to lick its paw. Then Androcles saw that the lion’s paw was wounded, sore and swollen.

On a closer look, Androcles noticed that a big thorn had pierced one of the lion’s toes. ‘So this is the cause of the lion’s distress,’ thought Androcles.

Summoning up all the courage, Androcles stretched his hand slowly towards the injured paw. He was afraid that the lion would attack him if he touched its swollen paw. But the lion seemed to understand his good intention.

◆ Why was the lion in pain?

• intention : purpose

- ◆ deftly : skilfully and quickly

- ◆ How did Androcles nurse the lion's wound?

- ◆ Where did the soldiers put Androcles and the lion after their capture?

Androcles took the paw in his left hand. Deftly, he pulled out the thorn. Then, tearing a piece of his own clothing, the kind man bound up the lion's injured paw. To his surprise and wonder, the lion then licked his arm, as if to show gratitude.

Androcles remained with the lion till it could walk again. He would hunt in the forest and share his food with the helpless beast. Every day, he would clean and dress the lion's wound. Soon, the lion was able to move about. Many times, it followed Androcles, wherever he went.

In the meanwhile, Androcles' master had complained to the authorities that his slave Androcles had run away. Soldiers were sent in all directions to capture Androcles. They searched for him high and low but couldn't find him. At last, they came to the forest where Androcles lived.

It so happened that Androcles had gone out alone that day while the lion rested near the cave. Both of them fell into the hands of the soldiers. The soldiers took them back to the city. They put Androcles in chains in a prison. The lion was caged.

In those days, people who were found to be guilty of a serious crime were fed to wild beasts, as punishment. Running away from one's master was a very serious crime at that time. Therefore, Androcles, too, was to be thrown to the wild beasts.

On the appointed day, the emperor arrived at the circus and took his place. The crowds cheered loudly. The trumpeters blew the trumpet and Androcles was brought into the arena. His chains were unbound. He felt weak and dismayed. He was certain that this was the last day of his life.

At the opposite end, a gate was raised and a ferocious lion was released into the arena. It had been kept hungry to make it more ferocious. Androcles was filled with fear, but he put up a brave front.

The lion saw Androcles and rushed towards him, bounding and roaring. But suddenly it stopped in its tracks. Then it moved slowly forward. All its rage seemed to have melted. Androcles saw this too. Each friend recognized the other.

To everyone's amazement, the lion bounded towards Androcles again, but when it reached him, it began to purr and rub its nose against him. Androcles hugged the lion. He wept with relief and joy.

The audience, including the emperor, watched this tender sight in great wonder. People began to cheer Androcles and asked for his release. The emperor asked Androcles to explain the lion's strange behaviour. When he heard the whole story, the emperor was also moved by the gratitude and friendship between man and beast. He ordered that Androcles should be set free. He would no longer be a slave.

When the emperor asked Androcles what other reward he would like, Androcles replied that he did not want anything for himself, but he wanted the lion to be set free too.

The two friends went back to the forest to live a free life.

• arena : a ground surrounded by seats on all sides for sports and other public events.

Trees are the Kindest Things I Know

Trees are the kindest things I know,
They do not harm, they simply grow.
And spread a shade for sleepy cows,
And gather birds among their boughs.
They give us fruit, in leaves above,
And wood to make our houses of,
And leaves to burn on Hallowe'en,
And in the Spring new buds of green.
They are the first when day's begun
To touch the beams of morning sun.
They are the last to hold the light,
When evening changes into night.
And when a moon floats on the sky
They hum a drowsy lullaby
Of sleepy children long ago...
Trees are the kindest things I know.

Miss Slippery

(Given below are extracts from the story of a lonely girl who is teased by classmates in school. Because she is upset and unnerved due to certain problems at home, she is unable to do any task well. The story tells us what happens next.)

Part - 1

I got ready and went to school. In the first period, our class teacher, who taught us English, told us to take out our composition notebooks. I took out the mathematics notebook by mistake. I replaced it quickly but the teacher, perhaps, had kept her gaze fixed on me. She shouted, "Come here with your book, Sayali!" I obeyed her but her angry looks made my legs tremble and when I reached her chair, the notebook fell on her feet.

Some girls laughed loudly. The teacher thought that I had dropped the notebook on purpose. She stared at me with an all-devouring look. "Go and stand near your seat," she yelled. I kept standing, punished for the whole period.

The next was History class and my favourite subject. The teacher had asked us to memorize the causes and effects of the Battle of Panipat. I was well-prepared. She began testing all of us, one by one. When my turn came I went blank. The teacher gave me a stern stare, while I stood there stiff, still, with my head hanging down in shame.

Mama and Papa continued their never-ending tiffs. Papa used every opportunity to express his annoyance. Mama on her part, did not allow any such occasion to slip without turning it into a vociferous quarrel. The quarrel was between the two, but the punishment inevitably descended on a third one, that is me at school. Wherever and whenever I heard raised voices, I felt as if Mama and Papa

- gaze : stare
- ◆ Why could the notebook have fallen from Sayali's hand?
- all-devouring look : a frightening look
- ◆ What happened when it was Sayali's turn to answer?
- went blank : could not remember anything
- stern : strict
- tiffs : a slight argument
- annoyance : feeling of being angry
- vociferous : noisy and forceful in expressing one's feelings
- inevitably : certainly
- descended : come or go down

were quarrelling. Sometimes, even in the midst of silence, Mama's screams came piercing through my ears. And, whenever I heard Mama's high-pitched yells, my legs quivered.

One day, I was coming down the school stairs. Somebody from the top gave a frantic scream. I fell and came tumbling down about seven steps. My elbows and knees were badly bruised. My new frock was torn at the seams. When I reached home, Mama shouted, "I am sick of you. When will you stop making me pay through my nose for such extravagant losses?"

Mother seized me by the arm, gave me a good jerk and seated me on the bed. She fetched an antiseptic lotion and applied it to my elbow and knees; but did not hug me. Within me lingered the yearning that she would hold me and console me! Even if she had given me just a sympathetic pat, my smarting limbs would have been soothed.

My younger brother was close by. As Mama walked away to the kitchen, he came and sat beside me. He placed his little hand on my arm and whispered, "Are you in great pain?" I hugged him tight and started crying again.

I used to walk quite cautiously, yet I would often stumble. One day, the class monitress announced, "We'll call her 'Slippery'. Others slip on wet ground. Sayali manages to slip even on dry land."

That provided the other girls of the class new scope for fun. They teased me with the new title every day. Soon, a verse was composed in my honour :

"Slippery! Slippery!

Slipping without muck!

Ask her the simplest question

No answer is your luck!"

I lived in perpetual fear of everyone the girls, the teachers, the young and the old. When I was in class, I dared not move out and when I was outside, I was afraid of re-entering the class. Nor could I muster the courage to speak to anyone.

Part - 2

The bell had already rung when I reached the school. The teacher was in the classroom. I sought permission to enter. The teacher wore a frown on her face, but she let me enter and told me to see her in the teachers' room, after the class. Her tone was not of annoyance or anger. Yet an unknown fear made me nervous. Reassuring myself that she was a kind-hearted teacher and would not punish me, I reached the teachers' room with hesitant steps.

The teacher greeted me with a smile and asked me to sit by her side. Her tender tone turned my sighs into sobs. She pulled her chair close to mine and patting me on the head, said, "What makes you cry, my child? I haven't said a word to you." After a brief pause, she continued, "Tell me what your trouble is. Confide in me, for am I not like a sister to you?" A rare thrill ran through my entire frame. For a moment I felt I should cling to her and cry and cry. Of course, I did not do so, but I kept gazing at her with tearful eyes.

Tenderly, teacher continued, "Do you know the meaning of didi? It means elder sister. Won't you tell your sister your troubles?" Amid sobs I said, "The girls keep teasing me." She laughed, "Why are you scared of them? If you cry like this, they will pester you all the more. So ignore them. Who is your friend?"

I shook my head and teacher smiled. It seemed the teacher had poured her smile into my eyes. "Like to be my friend?" she said.

The bell rang. She rose. With a tender pat on my back, she said, "Listen! You were a sister alright! Now you are a friend too. But I like my friends to be brave. You've got to try to be brave. I'll always stand by you, rest assured, my little pal. Now rise and hop off to your class."

Excitement made my face flush – red-hot to the ear-tips. Never before had anyone lavished love on me thus and here was my teacher who had spontaneously accepted me as a sister, a friend! I was beyond myself with joy. I wanted to chuckle – to burst into near-hysterical laughter.

On winged feet I ran to my class. Soon I was lost in a rare reverie. I forgot that I was sitting in a class of wild girls whose prime pastime was teasing me.

During the break, the water bottle that I was drinking from, fell on me and I got fully drenched. Right in front stood Maya and Chanda, laughing away to their hearts' content. Chanda teased, "From the slippery hands of Slippery, the slippery bottle went slip, slip, slip!” “And now, let’s watch the fun,” said Veena.

I was squeezing the water out of my wet frock. Remembering the teacher’s words, I turned my back to them and ignored them completely. They were non-plussed and went away. I sensed a feeling of victory.

Before the school closed for the day, the teacher came to the classroom again and said to me, “From today, you are going to be responsible for bringing the register, chalk and duster every morning. Come, take this key, carry these notebooks to the teachers’ room. Count them and keep them in my drawer. Ask the peon to show you my drawer.”

My otherwise trembling legs were now filled with some miraculous strength. I rushed enthusiastically and completed the assigned job in a jiffy. When I placed the key on the teacher’s table, she looked at me and smiled. I smiled back.

I was thrilled from top to toe. I felt my little heart inflate with pride. I found no awkwardness in moving about in my still-wet frock. Nor was there any trace of fear, while returning home.

Try again.
Once or twice, though you should fail,
Try again;
If you would at last prevail,
Try again;
If we strive 'tis no disgrace
Though we do not win the race;
What should we do in that case?
Try again.
If you find your task is hard,
Try again;

Try again;
All that other folk can do,
Why, with patience, may not you?
Only keep this rule in view,

The House-builder

This is a story of a mason, who worked for a building contractor. The mason always strove to do his work to perfection.

As soon as a house had been designed by the architect and details finalized by the engineer, the contractor would send for the mason and leave the responsibility of building the house to him. The mason would then, without wasting any time start his work. He would take great interest in his work of building and do it with full dedication. He made sure that he used the best construction material, of high quality, the measurements of the walls, doorways, arches etc. were perfect and he gave an excellent and appealing finish to whatever he built. The owners of the new houses built, would be more than satisfied with the construction.

Because of the zeal, diligence, loyalty and persistence that he displayed in his work, the mason was in great demand and fetched good business to his contractor. Subsequently the contractor, recompensed the mason, handsomely, with a very good salary. He could meet the needs of his family sufficiently, without any scarcity.

The mason thus continued working with great devotion for many years, till he became a grandfather. Then he decided that it was time to retire and spend time playing with his grandchildren. Being a firm-minded person, he informed his contractor of his decision to retire from house-building. The contractor was very disheartened to lose such an excellent workman and urged the mason to continue his job, but to no avail. The mason had made up his mind and refused to carry on.

Finally, the contractor convinced the mason to build one last house on a beautiful and convenient site, as a special favour. The mason agreed to do so with great reluctance, not too happily either.

The construction started. It was a most beautifully designed house to be built at a sought-after location. However, the mason could not put his mind and heart in his work. He did his work very roughly and carelessly, without interest or dedication. Even the building material used was of low quality; but he did not care. He simply wanted to complete the job in haste and finally retire.

The house was ready earlier than expected – very roughly made structures, weak walls, poor finish and did not look as good at all, as designed. Yet the mason did not care. He informed the contractor that the house was ready and he was waiting to hand over its keys to him.

The contractor arrived at the site. He had a file of legal documents in his hand. The mason handed over the new house's keys to him. But the contractor did not step forward to enter the house, to see it. Instead, with a broad smile, he handed over the file along with the house-keys to the mason and said beaming happy tone, "These are the ownership documents of this new house in your name. The house is yours. I had planned it as a gift for you."

The Little River

Our little river, it meanders along;
In summer, the water is only knee-deep,
And cows and carts can cross it with ease,
For the banks, though high, are not too steep.

No sign of slime, the sands shine bright,
On one shore, kash fields blossom white.
Chirping mynahs through that site,
The jackal's howl is heard there at night.
Across lie groves of mango and palm;
The village priests dwell in their cool shade,
Girls and boys bathe close to the bank,
Splashing with their gamchhas as they wade.

At dusk and dawn, once their bath is done,
They dip washcloths to trap small fish.
To their household tasks the wives return,
Having used river-sand to scour each dish.
In Ashadh, clouds gather, the waters rise;
The river's in spate, the current grows strong.
The air is rife with babbling sounds,
As the muddy torrent swirls along.
The woods onshore stir to life again,
And our village wakens to celebrate the rain.

- Mrs Sen : Now? Don't you think you are early ?
- Ritesh : Pardon, Ma'am ?
- Mrs Sen : I mean for the second period. You are too early for the second period.
- Ritesh : I am so sorry ! Ma'am, I'm really sorry. I started well in time from home, you won't believe what happened.
- Mrs Sen : Hmm, We'll see. Let's hear the story first. What happened? Nothing short of an earthquake, I'm sure.
- Ritesh : No, Ma'am, really, Ma'am. Honestly, Ma'am.
- Mrs Sen : Go ahead. Go ahead.
- Ritesh : I was walking to school as usual, I was half way down the narrow lane that leads to the market. Suddenly, I heard a scream from the main road.
- Mrs Sen : And of course, you had to investigate !
- Ritesh : Yes, Madam, I had to find out if someone needed help. And sure enough, there was this person lying near the pavement – he was groaning with pain.
- Mrs Sen : So, you took him to Dr Jadhav.
- Ritesh : No, Ma'am, I didn't get the chance. Just as I reached that man, another man came running out of the shop there, with a packet in his hand. And the shopkeeper also ran out shouting, "Chor! Chor! catch him!"
- Mrs Sen : Amazing ! Quite a handful for you to deal with and all at once ! What did you do then ?
- Ritesh : Yes, Ma'am, but the most amazing thing happened then. That man near the pavement—he, too, got up and began to run with the thief.

Ritesh : We couldn't do that, Ma'am. They just vanished around the corner. All this happened so fast.

Mrs Sen : Then why are you late ?

Ritesh : That's not all. I realized that I had left my bag at the shop in the mad rush. So I ran back to get it.

Mrs Sen : And it wasn't there !

Ritesh : No, Ma'am, it was there all right, but there was a huge, hairy, brown dog sitting on it. I didn't know what to do.

Mrs Sen : Interesting ! A dog on a bag in a shop !

Ritesh : Yes, Ma'am. Even the shopkeeper was surprised. He didn't know where the dog had come from. How that dog growled ! We tried all kinds of things to make it move – whistling and clapping, and showing him the stick but he wouldn't budge, and I couldn't leave without my school-bag.

Mrs Sen : But I see that you got your bag finally.

Ritesh : Yes, Ma'am. Finally the shopkeeper gave me some biscuits. I offered the biscuits to the dog and lured him away from the bag.

Mrs Sen : OK. So let's say that accounts for fifteen minutes.

- Ritesh : But there's more, Ma'am. The poor dog began to follow me to school. It looked so poor and lonely and small.....
- Mrs Sen : Small ? Did you say small ?
- Ritesh : I mean young, Ma'am. It was big in size but it was only a puppy, really. And it looked lost. Maybe it was looking for its mother or owner and I thought it was asking for my help. So I began to enquire with the other shopkeepers and passers by, but nobody could tell and couldn't leave it behind.
- Mrs Sen : And then you found the owner ? Who was it ?
- Ritesh : That's the funny part, Ma'am. The puppy itself found the owner. It saw someone across the road and just bounded towards the person. I was so relieved. Then I turned and ran straight to school.
- Mrs Sen : Good boy ! Now that your good deeds are done, there's something else you can do. There's a story-writing competition coming up. Would you like to send an entry ?
- Ritesh : Who Ma'am ? Me, Ma'am ? Now..... I wouldn't know what to write. I'm not good at making up stories.

◆ How did Ritesh describe the same dog, the second time?

● relieved : no longer worried

◆ *Why did Ritesh refuse to take part in the story-writing competition?

A Heroine of the Sea

♦ What role did the lighthouse play?

- fierce : violent or aggressive
- shipwreck : the destruction of a ship at the sea by sinking

♦ What efforts did Grace's father take to educate his children?

♦ What was Grace always unhappy about?

Around the rocky coast of England stand many lonely lighthouses. Their lights, shining across the sea, warn sailors at night of dangerous rocks. When they see the lights sailors take their ships far out to sea. But sometimes fierce storms drive ships on to the rocks. This is the story of a brave girl and of a shipwreck on the rocks one night in 1838.

Grace Darling was the daughter of a lighthouse keeper. She had lived all her life in lonely lighthouses, far away from towns and cities. There was not even a village near their home. Their nearest neighbours were many miles away. But Grace's father was a wise and educated man who brought up his children very carefully. Grace and her brothers and sisters were all taught to read and write. Their father also taught them to be honest and brave and unselfish.

When Grace was ten years old the family went to live in the Longstone lighthouse. Their new home was on some wild islands, near the east coast of England. The Darling children grew up here. When they were older they left their lonely home, one by one, and found work in the cities. At last, all of them had left the lighthouse, except Grace, who stayed at home to help her mother and father. She had not grown very tall. She was only a little woman, not at all like her father, who was more than six feet tall.

On the night of September 6th 1838, a terrible storm was blowing. Grace was used to storms. She herself was warm and safe in the big lighthouse. But she was always unhappy about the poor sailors who were at sea in the storm.

She did not know that a terrible thing was happening that night. That night a ship was wrecked upon the rocks. Grace and her parents did not hear the sound of the crash. The noise of the wind and the waves was too loud. They could not hear anything else. But a ship called the Forfarshire had hit the rocks a mile away from the lighthouse. Most of the passengers were drowned, but nine men and women were able to climb on to a rock. The wind nearly blew them into the sea as they clung to the bare rock. In the distance they saw the warm light of the lighthouse. But of course their shouts and screams were not heard. All night they clung there in the storm.

Next morning at six o'clock Grace was dressing. She looked out of her window and saw the storm was still blowing. Suddenly she stopped! Wasn't there something on the distant rocks? Calling her father, she looked again. Yes, there were certainly people clinging on to the rocks. But they were half under the sea!

'We must rescue them before they are drowned!' cried Grace. We must do something! Will you ever sleep again, Father, if they die?

William Darling was a brave old man, but he shook his head. 'It is hopeless,' he said. 'We can do nothing. How can I row a boat by myself through these waves? If only I had another man here to help me!'

'I can help you, Father,' cried Grace. 'I can row a boat as well as any man, can't I? I am small but I am strong. You and I have often rowed together. We can reach those unfortunate people!'

Mrs Darling was with her husband and daughter at the window. 'No, no!' she exclaimed. 'How will it help those poor people if you are drowned? You cannot row in this storm. Do not try! A girl like you, Grace, cannot do a man's job. Let us pray for them, husband. God will help them, perhaps, but we cannot!'

Grace was determined, however. She argued until at last her father agreed. Poor Mrs Darling, with a heavy heart, helped them to get the boat out. She watched and prayed as they set off.

Anyone who has seen a storm at sea can imagine that journey. The boat went up and down over waves as high as hills. Sometimes it stood on one end, sometimes on the other end. It went up, up to the top of a wave and then down, down into a great valley between the waves. Every time they went down the boat nearly went under the water.

But little by little, pulling with all their strength on the oars, they came nearer the rocks. The wind and the rain were so strong that Grace could not see the men and women clinging to the rocks. She only heard their cries for help. She needed all her strength to hold on to the oar, which was bigger than herself.

At last they came close to the rocks. William Darling was able to jump on to the rocks while Grace, all alone, held the two men into the boat. The two sailors from the wrecked ship were able to row. They helped the Darlings during the long journey back to the lighthouse. Then Grace and the three women got out. Old William Darling and the two sailors rowed back across the dangerous sea to rescue the four men still on the rock.

Grace did not have any time to rest now. All that day she was busy helping her mother to warm and feed the rescued passengers. After several days these passengers were able to return to their homes in England. They told the story of the brave girl and her father to their families and friends. Suddenly Grace Darling and her father were famous. The story of their heroism was told in the newspapers. Money was raised to help all the lighthouse keepers in their dangerous, lonely lives. Grace and her father were given a special reward for their heroism. Poor Grace did not live long after the rescue. She died at the age of twenty seven. But she is still remembered for her unselfish courage. She risked her own life for others.

I know a curious little boy

Who is always asking, “why?”

Why this, why that, why then, why now,

Why not, why by-and-by?

He wants to know why wood should swim,

Why lead and marbles sink;

Why stars should shine and winds should blow,

And why we eat and drink.

He wants to know what makes the clouds,

And why they cross the sky;

Why sinks the sun behind the hills,

And why the flowers die.

He wants to know why wind should come

From out the bellows’ nose;

Why pop-guns should go pop and why

The ocean ebbs and flows.

He wants to know why fish have gills,

And why boys cannot fly;

Why steam comes from the kettle’s spout,

And rain falls from the sky.

He wants to know why coal should burn,

And not a bit of stone;

How seeds get in the apple-core,

And marrow in the bone.

 But other no one ever yet
 Has found the reason why.

- austere : simple

- persuade : try to convince

- ◆ Who was the musician that Tansen was talking about?

- deliberate : purely made

- ◆ Why did Tansen make deliberate mistake?

Slowly, gently, the exhausted musician laid his tanpura on the carpet. The exquisite strains of Raag Darbari still vibrated within the hall. Emperor Akbar looked up, his eyes lit with admiration. “Wonderful!” he said. “Superb! I listen to you every day, but I can’t seem to have enough!”

Tansen bowed in silent gratitude.

“I think you have the most wonderful voice in the world!” said Akbar.

“But I don’t, Shahenshah!” said Tansen with a smile. “There is someone who sings far better than I do.”

“Really?” cried the disbelieving Akbar. “Then I must have him sing in my court. Can you arrange it?”

Tansen shook his head. “I’m afraid he will not come, Sire.”

“What ! Not even if he hears that the emperor himself has summoned him?”

“No, not even then.”

This reply would have enraged any other emperor.

But Akbar was different. “Very well, Ustadji,” said Akbar, smiling into Tansen’s half-scared eyes. “If he doesn’t come, I shall go to him, myself. Will you take me to him?”

“Yes, Sire, provided you do not come as the Emperor of Hindustan.”

“I shall go as a humble lover of music.”

Sant Haridas was the man, Tansen had spoken of. He had been Tansen’s music teacher and he lived the austere life of a hermit. When Tansen and the emperor reached his hut, he was busy with his daily chores. When they asked him to sing, he smiled but said firmly, “I’m long past the age for singing.” Even his favourite pupil could not persuade him to change his mind.

But Tansen knew how to get round him. He offered to sing before his guru. And he made a deliberate mistake. “That’s not the right note, Tansen,” cried his teacher, amazed. “What has happened to you?”

Tansen did not seem to understand his teacher and he made the same mistake again. Exasperated, Sant Haridas took the tanpura from Tansen’s hands and sang the right note. Then he went on to the next and the next!

The music spread across the forest, like the first glimmer of dawn or the fragrance of jasmine. Both Akbar and Tansen listened to him as if they were hypnotised and the emperor realized that Tansen had spoken the truth. He had not known that music could be like this! He had certainly never heard anything like it before.

As they walked back, the emperor suddenly broke the silence to ask Tansen, “Why can’t you sing like him, Ustadji?”

Tansen smiled. “Shahenshah, I sing at your command, the command of the Emperor of Hindustan. But Guruji sings for one who is Master of even kings! GOD! His music springs from the depths of his soul, free and unasked for. How can I expect my music to be so beautiful and divine?”

- forbids : disallows
- emphasize : stress upon

- intruding : coming to a place where one is uninvited.
- heart rending : causing great sorrow

A.J. Cronin has very well carved the idea of selfless help and explained the importance of dedication towards relationships in the story, The two Gentlemen of Verona. The story revolves around the two boys named Nicola and Jacopo who do numerous things to earn money only to pay for their sister's treatment who suffers from tuberculosis of the spine.

The story begins with the narrator driving down the foothills of the Alps. Here is when he first encounters the two brothers selling wild strawberries. Even after the driver forbids the narrator to buy the wild fruits, he buys the biggest basket and drives towards the town. This scene emphasizes on the first step of growing intimacy between the narrator and the two boys.

Next day, the boys are found shining shoes in the public square. This amazes the narrator. This is when they reveal the fact that they do numerous kinds of things to earn money. Here, the narrator is shown to develop a soft corner for them in his heart. He finds them to be innocent, serious, pleasant and earnest.

The boys are very useful to the narrator. They are very willing to satisfy all that the narrator requires. They are also found selling newspapers, by the narrator, one stormy night. One day, when the narrator asks if he can help them in any, they say they will be very grateful if they get a lift to the nearby village Poleta. Although it doesn't come in the narrator's way he takes them there. The boys get down in a building and ask the narrator to wait in a nearby cafe, until they return within an hour.

Eagerness leads the narrator to follow the boys up to a place which is actually a hospital. On peeping through a room, led by a nurse, he realizes that boys are talking to a girl who resembles them. He does not feel like intruding and thus asks the nurse the details about the boys. This is when the nurse tells him there heart rending story about their father being killed in a war and their home being destroyed in the war and their sister suffering from tuberculosis. The brothers live in a shelter and literally starve only so that they can pay for their sister's treatment. So keeping a secret and helping their sister they have shown that war has not shaken their spirit. They are noble and gentle and great human beings in their own special yet subtle way. This story distinctly talks about how true the amplification says : 'Where there is will there's a way'.

- not shaken their spirit : not reduced eagerness to do something
- subtle : refined, nice
- distinctly : clearly
- amplification : focus on a statement

- What secret about the brothers, does the nurse tell the narrator?

Language Study

We have already learnt that Clause is a group of words that has a Subject and a Verb and is a part of a larger sentence. In the sentence, 'We returned home, when school was over.' there are two clauses – 1st 'We returned home' and 2nd 'when school was over.'

The first one makes complete sense. So it is called Main/ Principal Clause.

The second one is not complete by itself. It depends on the main clause to convey a proper sense. So it is called Dependant or Subordinate Clause. 'When' is the joining word and it is called a Subordinator.

Identify the Main / Principal Clauses and Subordinate Clauses and encircle the Subordinator.

- (1) They pay for their sisters treatment, who suffers from tuberculosis.
- (2) When he asks the nurse, she tells him their story.
- (3) They have shown that war has not shaken their spirit.
- (4) Although it doesn't come in the narrator's way, he takes them there.

The Vet

To be a successful and competent vet,
Needs knowledge exceedingly wide,
For each of the patients he's likely to get
Possesses a different inside.

He must know why the cat is refusing her milk,
Why the dog is not eating his bone,
Why the coat of the horse is not shining
like silk,
Why the parrot does nothing but groan;

Why the ducks and the chickens are failing to lay,
Why so faint the canary bird sings,
And if he is called to the zoo he must say
An incredible number of things.

If the lion's caught a cold,
If the zebra's getting old,
If the centipede has trouble with his feet,
If the hippo's feeling ill,
If the bison's got a chill,
If the Arctic fox is suffering from heat,

If some virulent disease
Has attacked the chimpanzees,
If the tortoise hasn't stirred for several years,
If the bear's too full of buns,
If the cobra eats her sons,
If the panther has a wife who chews his ears;

If giraffes have had a tiff
And their necks are feeling stiff

- ♦ What are the opposite illnesses of the lion and the Arctic fox?
- virulent : caused by virus
- stirred : moved
- a tiff : a quarrel
- ♦ Why have the giraffes got stiff necks?

- keepers' : zoo keeper

♦ Why does the poet call the vet 'omniscient'?

- cannibal : one who eats human flesh
- omniscient : one who knows all and everything
- Profoundly : greatly, deeply

♦ What is the poet's advise to you? Do you think he means it?

If hyenas will not laugh at keepers' jokes,
If the monkey's pinched his tail,
If the rhino's looking pale,
If the elephant eats paper-bags and chokes,

If the camel-hurts his hump,
If the kangaroo won't jump,
If the crocodile turns cannibal and bites,
They run away and get
That omniscient, the vet
And expect him to put everything to rights.

Profoundly I pity the vet, who must learn
Such a very great deal for his pay;
My son, I advise you most strongly to earn
Your living an easier way.
Don't attempt to attend the zoological crowd;
a far more advisable plan
Is to call yourself 'Doctor', and so be allowed
To treat the illnesses of man.

P. V. Sindhu – An Icon of Success

P. V. Sindhu or Pusarla Venkata Sindhu is an ace shuttler and silver medalist at 2016 Rio Summer Olympics. This young badminton player from Andhra Pradesh was born to volleyball players P. V. Ramana and P. Vijaya in the year 1995. Her father was honoured with Arjuna Award for having displayed excellence in his sport. One of the youngest and talented badminton players of the contemporary times, Sindhu has featured in top 10 in the world badminton rankings for the most part of 2014.

P. V. Sindhu started playing badminton from the age of eight, after she drew inspiration from Pullela Gopichand's victory in All England Open Badminton Championship in 2001. That's the reason why she chose badminton over volleyball although her parents were professional volleyball players. Her initial apprenticeship started with Mehboob Ali at the badminton courts of Indian Railway Institute of Signal Engineering and Telecommunications in Secunderabad. Later, she joined Pullela Gopichand's badminton academy to further enhance her sporting skills.

Early Success

Sindhu's first major recognition came in the form of the 5th Servo All India ranking championship for under-10 category. She also won the singles title at the Ambuja Cement All India ranking.

In the under-13 category, Sindhu won doubles titles at the IOC All India Ranking, Krishna Khaitan All India Tournament, the Sub-Junior Nationals and the All India Ranking in Pune.

At the 51st National School Games in India, Sindhu won the gold medal in under-14 category.

Sindhu's Debut and Performance at International level

P. V. Sindhu didn't take much time to launch and establish herself as a promising player in the global arena. She won a bronze medal at the 2009 Sub-Junior Asian Badminton Championships held in Colombo.

The star player bagged silver in the women's singles at Iran Fajr International Badminton Challenge in 2010 and found a place in the national team at the 2010 Uber Cup.

P. V. Sindhu's Recent Recognitions

On 7 July 2012, Sindhu won Asia Youth Under-19 Championship. Sindhu's performance at Malaysian open 2013 made her win the maiden Grand Prix Gold title.

The best moment in her career perhaps came in the same year when she became India's first medalist in women's singles at the Badminton World Championships.

P. V. Sindhu ended 2013 on a happy note by winning Macau Open Grand Prix Gold title, and also won the Arjun Award, one of the highest honours for a sportsperson in the country. In 2014, she won back-to-back medals in the World Badminton Championship and became the first Indian to do that. In November, 2015, she bagged successive women's singles title at the Macau Open Grand Prix Gold.

The year 2016 brought her another achievement of winning the Malaysia Masters Grand Prix Gold women's singles title, where she defeated Scotland's Kirsty Gilmour in the final. In August, she reached the semi-final of the women's singles event at the 2016 Summer Olympics, after defeating World No.2 Wang Yihan.

Sindhu created history by reaching the finals after beating Japan's Nozomi Okuhara in the women's singles semi-final in the Rio Olympics. She won a silver medal in the finals, while the gold was taken by Spain's Carolina Marin.

Later, she defeated Carolina Marin and won 2017 India Open Superseries title.

Noteworthy Honours

Among the other noteworthy honours that Sindhu has received are the Padma Shri in 2015, which is the fourth highest civilian award of India. In 2016, she received the Rajiv Gandhi Khel Ratna Award.

The best endorsement of Sindhu has been Gopichand's words about her dedication and commitment to the sport: "The most striking feature in Sindhu's game is her attitude and the never-say-die spirit."

P.V. Sindhu has been pushing the envelope like no young badminton player had done before in the history of women's badminton, in India.

At an interview, Sindhu was asked how much mentoring/guidance her father and mother had been able to give her and how involved they were in her sports career. In her own words,

“Guidance wise, every time I go for national level tournaments, they accompany me there and when I practise and play, they tell me what I’m doing. My dad gives me a summary of how I play and it is very helpful, because as outsiders those who look at it, know more about the game. As badminton players, we obviously, know a few things, but someone from the outside can pinpoint stuff, that we may not have noticed easily. So, both as counsellors and parents, it is really helpful.”

In the same interview, a practical question was asked – it’s not possible for a badminton player to win week in and week out. As a top player, how did she manage to just go to a tournament and psychologically deal with an early loss? Did it hurt when she didn’t win?

To this she replied, “If you don’t play well and lose in the first round, second round, you feel bad, especially if you’re one of the top players. But you need to come out of it and practise harder and identify and learn from your mistakes. I think, to come out of it, it takes time. But ups and downs are always there, and you need to cope with it.”

Hats off, to you, Sindhu, and wish you even greater success!

- pushing the envelope : extend / reach beyond what is possible

- mentoring : training, advising

- ◆ What difference do her parents make, when they attend her tournaments?

- week in and week out : every week without exception

- psychologically : affecting mind and emotions

- come out of : succeed in dealing with a problem and defeat it

- ◆ How can one come out of failure or loss, according to Sindhu?

(2) We have already learnt that when there occurs a comparison in the lines of a poem, the Figure of Speech in that line is a Simile.

For example : as bright as a star tall just like a tree

However, if the comparison made in the line of a poem is indirectly understood or suggested (implied) without using words (as as, just like) and so on, then the Figure of Speech is called a Metaphor.

For example : Riya is the star of our class.
 Life is a game. Play it well.

Now say which of the following are the examples of Simile and which contain Metaphor.

- (1) Twinkle Twinkle Little Star, like a Diamond in the sky.
- (2) The stormy sea, as dark as coal
- (3) Old mighty tree, Your branches span the sky
- (4) Time is money
- (5) Like a caged bird sadly sings
- (6) More than clouds, you are soft
- (7) The Rose is the king of flowers.

(3) When opposite ideas occur in the same line of the poem, the Figure of Speech that occurs in that line is called Antithesis.

For example : ● Up and down the hill, they flew.

- Many are called, but few are chosen.
- The best of times, the worst of times.

Golden Chain

Friendship is a Golden chain,
The links our friends so dear,
And like a rare and precious jewel
It's treasured more each year...

It's clasped together firmly
With a love that's deep and true,
And it's rich with happy memories
And fond recollections, too...

Time can't destroy its beauty
For as long as memory lives,
Years can't erase the pleasure
That the joy of friendship gives...

For friendship is a priceless gift
That can't be bought or sold,
But to have an understanding friend
Is worth far more than gold...

And the golden chain of Friendship
Is a strong and blessed tie
Binding kindred hearts together
As the years go passing by.

The Unsinkable Ship

◆ Why was the Titanic so called?

◆ What facilities were available on the ship?

● iceberg : a very large mass of ice floating in the sea.

◆ What made the man turn cold with fright?

● to steer : to turn

● scraped : scratched deep against a rough surface

◆ What was the damage caused to the ship?

On 10 April 1912, the largest luxury ship in the world set sail from Southampton in England to New York. She was called the Titanic. The word 'titanic' means 'huge'. This was her maiden voyage, that is her first voyage. She set out to cross the Atlantic Ocean and she carried more than two thousand passengers. The Titanic was like a floating town.

Everyone called the Titanic the finest ship in the world. Everyone was proud of her. She was as tall as a building with fifteen storeys. Inside, she was like a large hotel with grand staircases, dining-rooms, shops and swimming pools.

Everyone thought that the Titanic could never sink. They called her the unsinkable ship. The ship's builders were so sure of this, that they put only a few life-boats on the ship.

The journey was very comfortable. The passengers were proud because they were travelling in the best ship in the world. They felt safe.

Then came the night of 14 April. The sky was clear and the sea was calm. Many of the passengers were asleep. Captain Smith knew that there were icebergs nearby, so he told a man to keep a watch from the top of the ship. Suddenly at 11.40 p.m. the man saw something. He grew cold with fear. A huge iceberg stood right in the path of the Titanic. ICEBERGE! He yelled.

Captain Smith fought hard to steer the Titanic away from the iceberg, but the ship changed direction slowly and her side scraped the mountain of ice. A shower of ice fell on to the decks and the iceberg cut holes along the ship's side. Water began to pour into the lower decks. Most passengers heard nothing and slept on.

Captain Smith and his crew could not stop the water flooding through the ship. They knew the Titanic was in great danger. The unsinkable ship was sinking. At 12.15 a.m., Captain Smith sent urgent messages on the ship's radio asking for help. 'HELP!' TITANIC SINKING! COME QUICKLY! Then he ordered the crew to wake all the passengers up.

A ship called 'The California' was only twenty miles away, but she did not receive Titanic's messages. Her radio was turned off and the radio operator was asleep.

Another ship called the 'Carpathia' heard the Titanic's calls and sailed at full speed towards her. Unfortunately, the Carpathia was far away and she took over three hours to reach the Titanic.

Meanwhile, the Titanic was sinking rapidly. The crew lowered the life-boats into the sea, but there was only enough space in the boat for a few hundred passengers. The Titanic had more than two thousand people on board. The ship began to tilt into the sea. People began to jump from the decks into the ice-cold water.

With its lights still shining, the Titanic stood upright for a few minutes. Then, at 2.20 a.m., on 15 April, she vanished into the sea. About fifteen hundred people drowned. Captain Smith and most of his crew went down with the ship.

The Carpathia arrived at 3.40 a.m. The ship's crew found the life-boats and saved seven hundred people in them. They also found chairs and pieces of wood floating on the water. But almost all of the people in the water had drowned or died of cold. The Carpathia was too late to save them.

The sinking of the Titanic made people think harder about the safety of passengers on ships. They asked why ships carry such few life-boats and why they turn off their radios. In 1913, it was decided that all ships must have enough room in their life-boats to carry everyone on board. It was also decided that ships must keep their radios working every hour of the day and night.

In 1985, scientists sent a submarine to look for the wreck of the Titanic. They found the ship lying in two pieces on the ocean floor, at a depth of around 4000 metres (13,000 feet). Later, they took photographs of the wreck and brought small parts of it to the surface of the water.

◆ Why were the passengers in grave danger?

● tilt : move in a sloping, bent position.

◆ Why could 'Carpathia' not do much to save more lives?

◆ What two compulsions were laid down for all ships, in 1913?

◆ How far had the Titanic sunk?

There are many stories of bravery on that terrible night in April 1912. In 1998, the director James Cameron made a famous film of the Titanic's maiden voyage. It is a very sad film. Almost everyone who sees the film leaves the cinema in tears.

Festivals of North East India

Read about how different festivals are celebrated in the North-eastern States of India.

The North east region of India, consisting of seven States, is a place of diverse cultures. The different communities and tribes celebrate their unique festivals with great enthusiasm and joy. Many of their festivals are based on agriculture and no celebration is complete without the traditional music and dance.

Blessed with lush greenery and the mighty river Brahmaputra, the people of Assam have a lot to celebrate. So Bihu is the chief festival of this State. It is celebrated by people of all religions, castes or tribes. The three different sets of Bihu mark the beginning of the harvesting season, the completion of sowing and the end of the harvest season.

The Bihu dance is a joyous one performed by both young men and women and is noted for its brisk steps and hand movement. Unusual instruments provide traditional music for the dance – the dhol which is similar to a drum, the pepa, a wind instrument made from a buffalo horn, cymbals and a bamboo clapper. The songs have been handed down through many generations. Bihu competitions held all over Assam attract visitors and locals alike in large numbers.

Living further north in the mountainous region of the Himalayas, Arunachal Pradesh finds a mention in the ancient literature of the Puranas and the Mahabharata. Nature has provided the people of this region with a deep feeling for beauty which can be seen in their festivities, songs and dances.

The new year festival, called Losar is perhaps the most important festival in certain areas of Arunachal. On this occasion, people clean out their homes to bring in the new year and to discard the old.

A charming festival of Manipur–Ningol Chakouba–binds and revives the relationship between married girls and their parents. The women and their children are given a sumptuous feast and gifts. During Cheiraoba, the Manipur new year festival in April, people clean

The Spring Festival or Chapchar Kut is an important occasion, mostly celebrated in Mizoram. Men and women of all ages, wearing traditional dresses and headgear, perform folk dances and sing traditional songs on this occasion. Drums, gongs and cymbals add to the festive air!

Wangala or the hundred-drum festival is the most important festival celebrated by the Garos in the villages of Meghalaya. This harvest festival is celebrated to mark the end of a period of hard work, which naturally brings a good harvest. The dance performed during the festival has two parallel lines – one of men and the other of women, clad in their festive costumes. While the men beat the drums, the lines of dancers move forward together in a rhythmic manner.

The main feature of festivals in Tripura is that all the people join in the celebrations. Many of the dances performed during some of the festivities represent hunting, fishing, food-gathering and various other activities. Some of the festivals attract people from all over India.

Nagaland consists of different groups of people who are unique in their customs and traditions and the festivities they celebrate. Songs and dances form the soul of these festivals through which their oral history is passed down. A major festival is Moastu celebrated mainly in the villages after the sowing season. Dressed in colourful clothes and headgear decorated with feathers and wild boar tusks, the villagers dance to traditional music.

Hardly a month passes in any of the seven States without a festival or two. Most of them have a religious importance or significance, as the people offer thanks to the gods for a good harvest to prosperity, or ask for protection against calamities. But these celebrations also help to encourage cultural and artistic activities and bring out the natural talent of the people.
