ACTIVITY 1

Across the Solar System with Mila

• Saturn

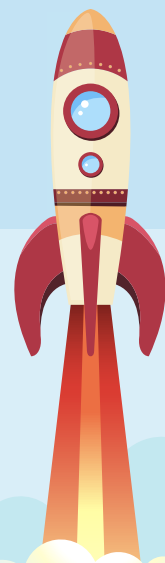

Type:	Gas Giant
Length of a year:	29.5 Earth years
Size (diameter):	116,464 km, or about 9 Earths

Saturn, the sixth and the second-largest planet in our Solar System, is named after the Roman god of agriculture and wealth. It is so big that 764 Earths might fit inside it, but weighs only as much as 95 Earths. Its average density is so less than water, that if you had a large enough swimming pool, the planet would simply float in it! On Saturn, a day is hardly 10.7 hours long, but a year extends to 29 Earth years.

Average (adjective) – Typical or normal

Saturn is mostly made up of hydrogen and helium. Multiple tones of yellow, brown, and grey can be observed on its surface. While there are multiple planets that have rings around them, none can compare to how Saturn's seven look! Saturn's rings are made up of billions of ice and rock fragments covered in dust. Each ring circles the planet at a different pace.

Fragment (noun) – A small part of something that has broken off or comes from something larger Pioneer11, Cassini, Voyager 1 and 2, and other robotic spacecraft have all visited Saturn. The Pioneer 11 and Voyager spacecraft observed Saturn while on route to farther-off destinations, but Saturn was the Cassini mission's primary objective.
