Hello young learners!

I am Mila from the Disney.BYJU'S Early Learn App, where I share all my adventures in Ordinary County!

? Do you know that I have a secret? Not even my brother, Ezra, knows about it!

I am a superhero who goes by the name Kid Inc. I wear a badge that glows and alerts me whenever there is any trouble!

But when I am back to being Mila, I read books, explore the world and do my homework, just like you! Would you like to help me finish it?

You can also join Miss Mala, Miss Meridiem and Officer Michael for more fun learning activities!

Mila Explains Drawing

Drawing

We all know how to draw; some of us might not be great at drawing, but we know what it is to draw. And, we love it because it almost always makes us feel great! But did you know that many fields of visual arts, like architecture, need you to draw something first before you can create it? It is the starting point for many visual arts. Interesting, isn't it?

You must be wondering why? The reason is that drawing is one of the easiest ways to express one's thoughts and ideas. It lets the visual artists put the picture in their mind on paper. For example, an architect might draw a building on paper and figure out where to put the doors, windows and other things to make the building look nice from the outside. Doors and windows of different sizes and shapes will be put in the drawing. They will then look at how the building will look with different decorations. Once the architect is happy with the drawing, they will start working on making the building for real. That's a great way to use drawing at the workplace, don't you think?

While drawing, you are expected to pull ideas from your mind, your memories or even from your surroundings, like trees, fruits, chairs and so on. The rough draft, plan or outline of the drawing is known as a sketch. Drawing people requires you to know drawing really well. These different types of drawings are often known as object drawing, nature drawing and human figure drawings.

Drawing of a landscape

To draw, you do not need many supplies. Paper and pencil will do. Some people also use pastels, pens or even charcoal to draw. Drawings are mostly made up of lines. Artists also use different techniques to do shading, add texture and show depth.

Observation is a very important part of drawing. It is the act of carefully watching something or someone. It teaches you to focus and pay attention to shapes, patterns, how things are put together or how two or more things are similar or different. You need to put in great effort to learn these things. While drawing is a hard subject to master, you may also draw for fun and relaxation.
